Our Heritage at McKinley: A Tradition of Excellence

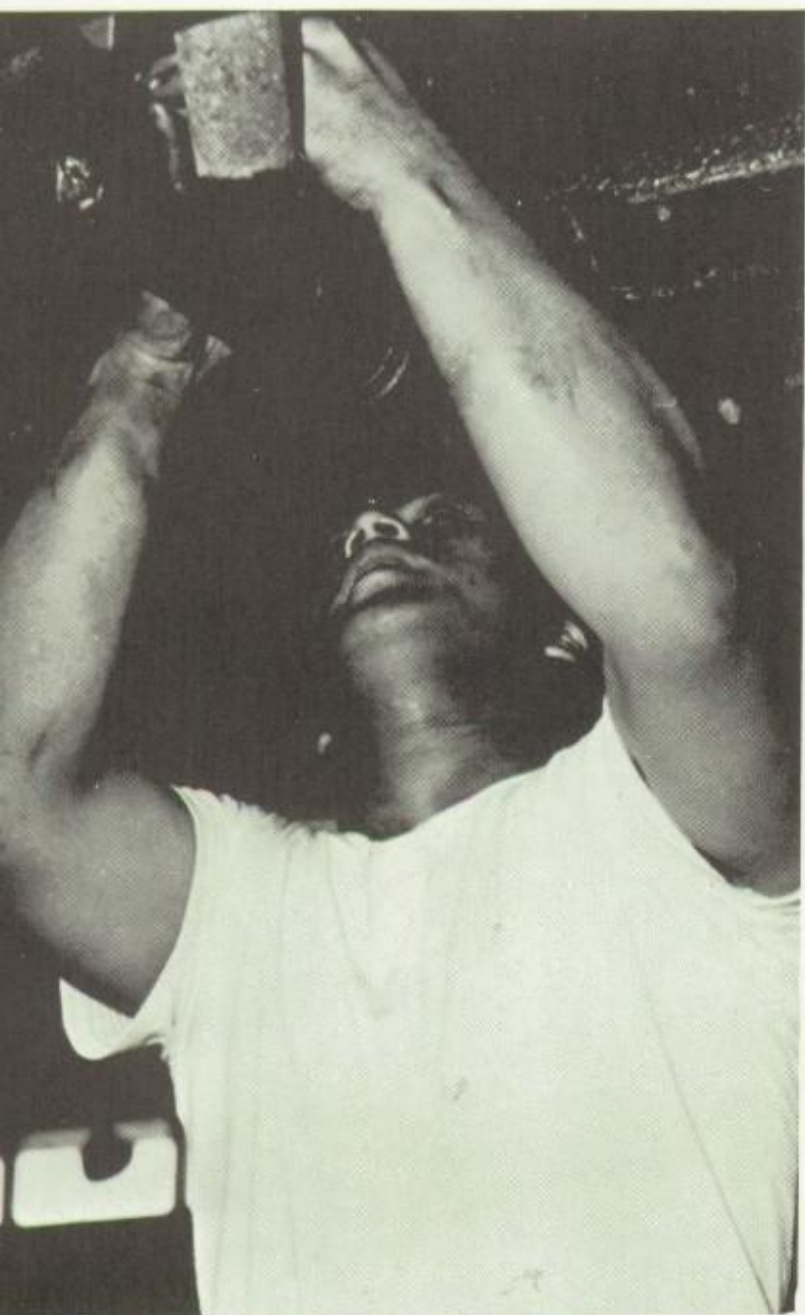

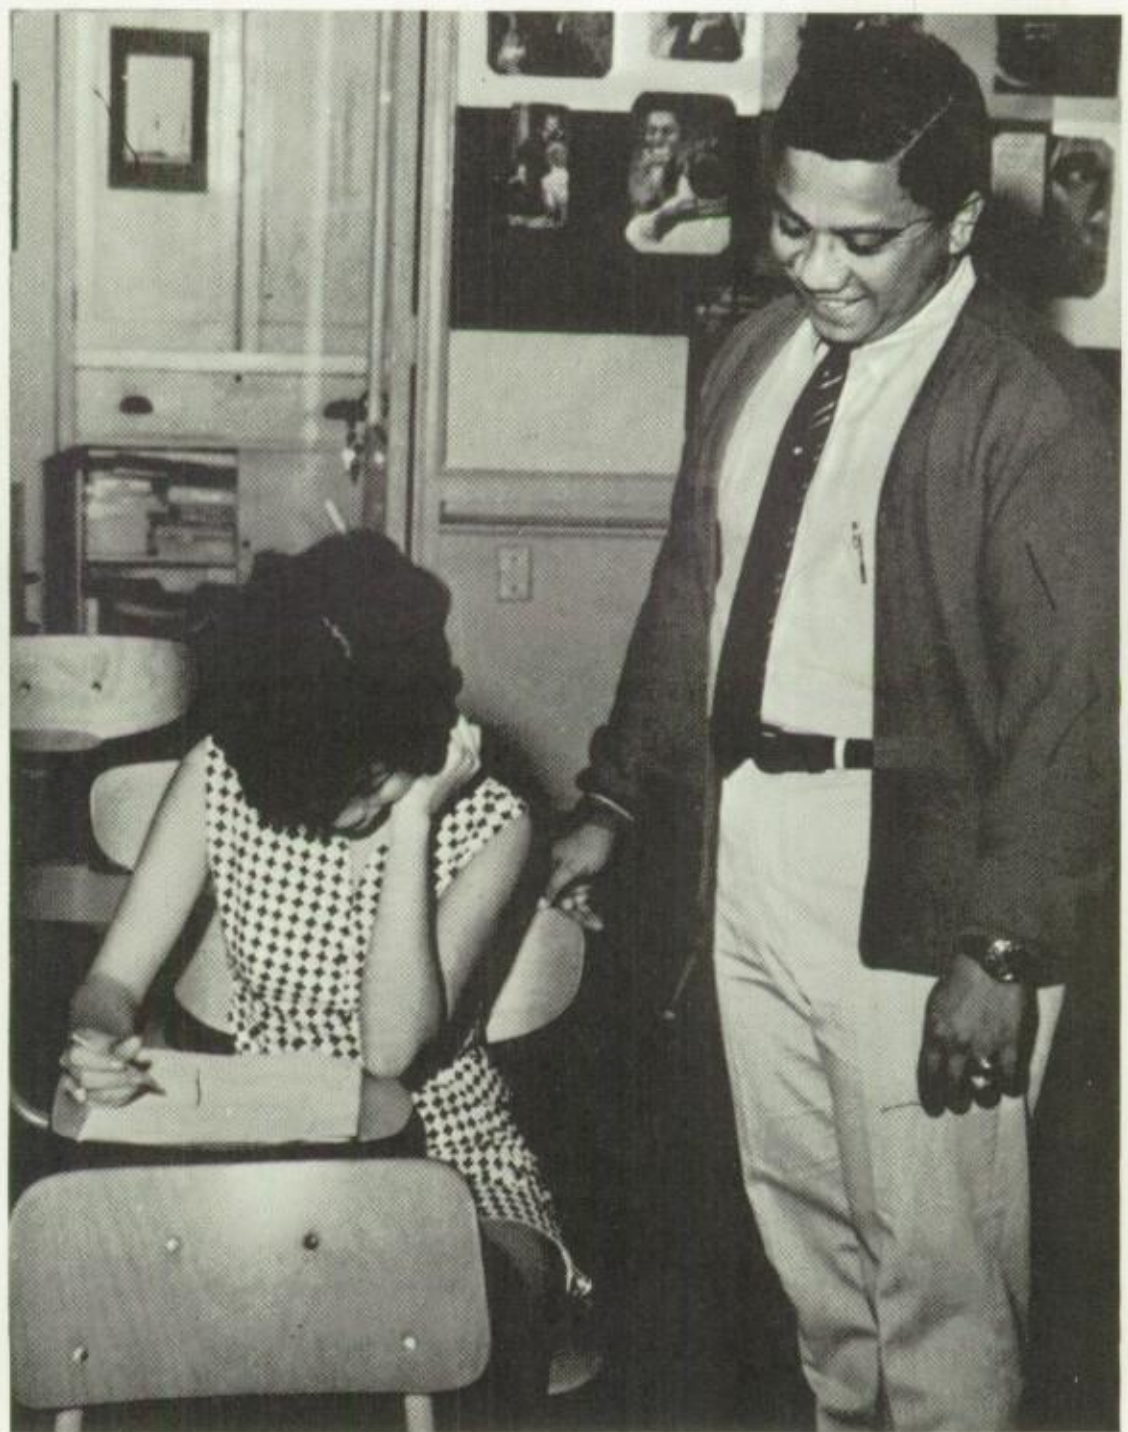

Diversified Curriculum

In preparing her students for college and community life, McKinley offers a varied curriculum appealing to a broad range of interests.

The courses are aimed to develop the individual by stressing strongly the learning of skills, the obtainment of factual knowledge and the enrichment as well as the development of mind, body and character.

Versatile Faculty

To qualify as a teacher at McKinley High School, an educator must also be a chaperone, a counselor, an advisor and assume various other roles.

He becomes an important part in the way a student enriches himself and grows.

The faculty of McKinley offers more than knowledge to the school for they typify student-teacher relations at their best.

Colorful Campus

Unique in itself is McKinley's campus.

Located near the center of business activity in Honolulu, it serves as a physical example of the achievement and pride of her students.

From her lollipop-shaped Banyan trees on the front lawn to the towering pine trees shading the borders, from the stateliness of its original buildings to the modern design of the new buildings, McKinley's tradition of good education is on going and up building continually.

Progressive Facilities

McKinley is similar to a small community. With our facilities we are able to put out our own daily paper, produce plays, grow vegetables and raise flowers, repair cars, create music and art, and conduct a democratic government.

This year McKinley adds to its resources a new multi-purpose building for the expanding interests of its students.

Tiger Spirit

Traditional for McKinley High School is the spirit that emits from each Tiger.

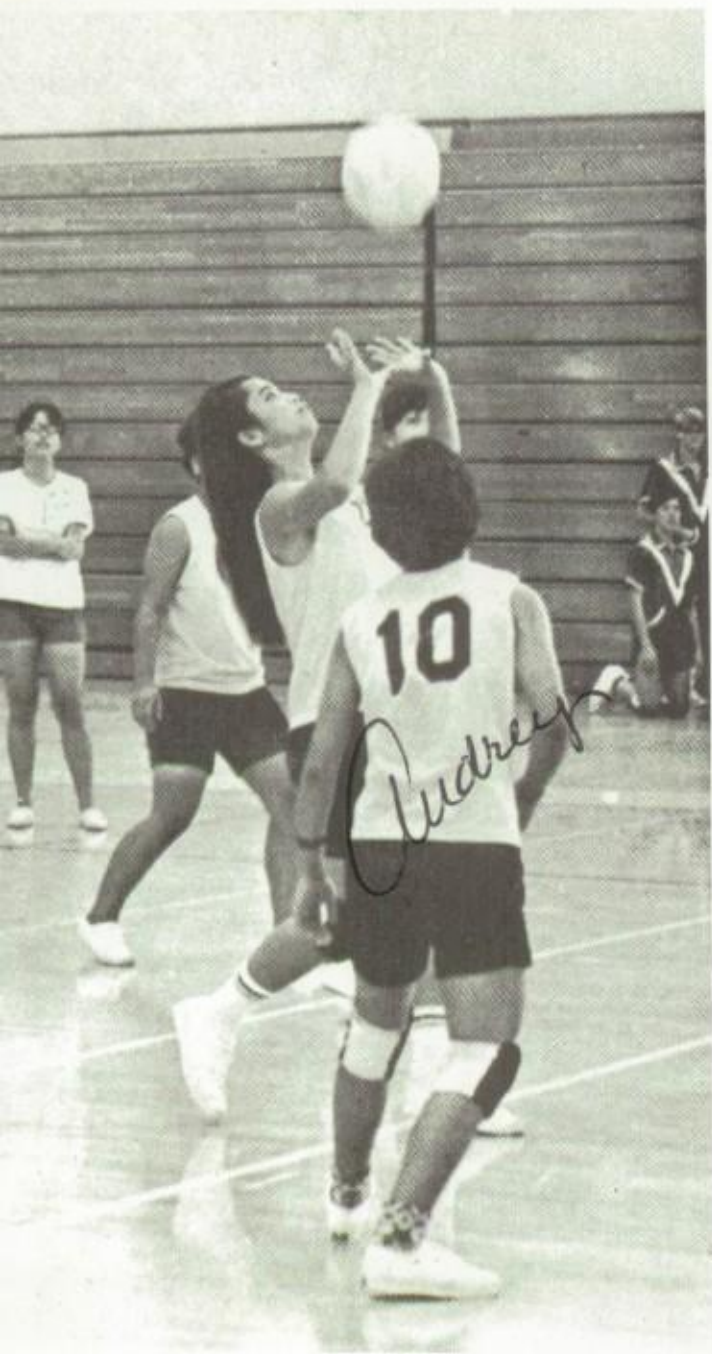

It is the spirit that drives her students onward when faced with defeat or to rally together to generate enthusiasm.

It need not be the cheering section of a sports game for it may well be a moment of quiet, pensive thinking.

This exuberance is the one face that never changes on campus from generation to generation.

This heritage is the heart of McKinley High School.

MHS Administrators Cope With Problems, Maintain Excellence

The 1968-69 school year initiated a new policy in student responsibility by Principal Edmund Toma. With parental approval of lunch permits, students were enabled to eat lunch off-campus within walking distance.

Assisting Mr. Toma were first vice-principal in charge of instruction and school calendar and second vice-principal in charge of discipline and school grades.

Students received counseling from the various grade level counselors. Assisting with students' program changes and plans for their future were four class counselors.

A special counselor, coordinated programs and offered guidance to students under a special program, Operation Tangent.

A new registration format was developed by McKinley's registrar to make the '69-'70 registration easier. In the month of January, preliminary registration began. As part of the format, on February 14, a special schedule gave the juniors and sophomores sufficient amount of time to have their teachers approve their planned courses.

McKinley students used a remodeled and enlarged library with new study carrels. The administration kept pace with the problems of student unrest and met this challenge straight on with revision of school policies and review and improvement of instruction. Ground work was laid for reaccreditation by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges.

Staffs Provide Services Vital To McKinley

The versatile school staffs of McKinley including the cafeteria, secretary, business, and custodial were always carrying out necessary operation of a large city high school.

The secretarial and business staff conducted the school affairs, collected fees, kept records, and compiled numerous reports. Their efficiency aided McKinley in keeping its high standard of operation.

The faculty and student body enjoyed the nutritious lunches prepared for them by the cafeteria staff. For extra nourishment, supplementary items such as sandwiches, salads, and desserts were provided.

A conscientious custodial staff maintained the McKinley reputation for having a neat and beautifully landscaped campus. The custodial supervisor also aided students by teaching them the operation of the technical equipment for the auditorium.

All made life at McKinley especially pleasant because of their extra effort.

Distinctive Characteristics Describe McKinley Faculty

No one quite realizes how special a person a teacher must be. Their work is never really through because from morning till night they are endowed the responsibility of educating the minds of youth. Here at McKinley the scene was no different. In an effort to bridge communication problems between educator and learner as well as adult and youth the faculty here has worked beyond the homework assignments to reach the students as human beings. In doing so they were able to draw talents and give added incentive to the slowly awakening boy or girl. Chaperoning or counseling may be extra responsibilities for other teachers but for McKinley teachers they were a means by which they fulfill the process of learning.

Among McKinley's conscientious and devoted teachers, Mrs. Margaret Mau unfolds a phase of American History.

Regulated book reports are required of Mrs. Bernice Ushiroda's sophomore English students. Taking advantage of the extra time given in class to complete their reading are Harlan Silva, Sandra Ishiki, and Fred Naanua.

To gain a deeper insight on how a major daily newspaper of Hawaii operates, ten newswriting students accompanied editors of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin on their assignments. Mr. Ed Edwards, city editor of the Star-Bulletin, explains a few points on how to improve The Pinion to news editors Wendy Fong and Sheila Wolfe and co-editor Kenneth Lee.

Senior Jaslyne Lee rehearses her "flying" skills for the lead role in the musical fantasy play, "Peter Pan" which was a huge success.

Developing effective use of the English language is exercised in debate classes. Sophomore William Kato conducts the debate as senior Preston Ota looks over his notes in Mrs. Fely Serra's class.

Mr. Wilbur Luna, senior English teacher, operates the overhead projector to illustrate a lesson.

Diverse Interests Fulfilled By Language Arts

Stress on literature was aimed to increase students' knowledge and understanding of the works of English and some translations of non-English writers. While the sophomores concentrated on world literature, the juniors probed into American and seniors, English and some world literature.

To improve their grammar skills, students composed original essays, poems, and other compositions.

Though there were a few excursions planned, students were encouraged to attend good stage plays presented at the University of Hawaii, community theatres, and here at McKinley High School.

A wide selection of speech courses was offered including speech fundamentals, speech improvement, public speaking, discussion/debate, and semantics.

The Sacred Hearts Novice Original Oratory Tournament kicked off the series of speech contests students participated in. Other competitions were the Kam and Chaminade Tournaments.

The fantasy play "Peter Pan" headlined hard-working and talented drama students. Featured in this production was Mr. Peter Foy's "flying machine" which assisted characters of the play to fly.

McKinley's Pinion was recognized in the local newspapers for being one of five daily high school papers in the nation. Both the Black and Gold and the Pinion offered training for professional reporters, editors, columnists, and photographers.

Retrospect Adds New Perspection To History

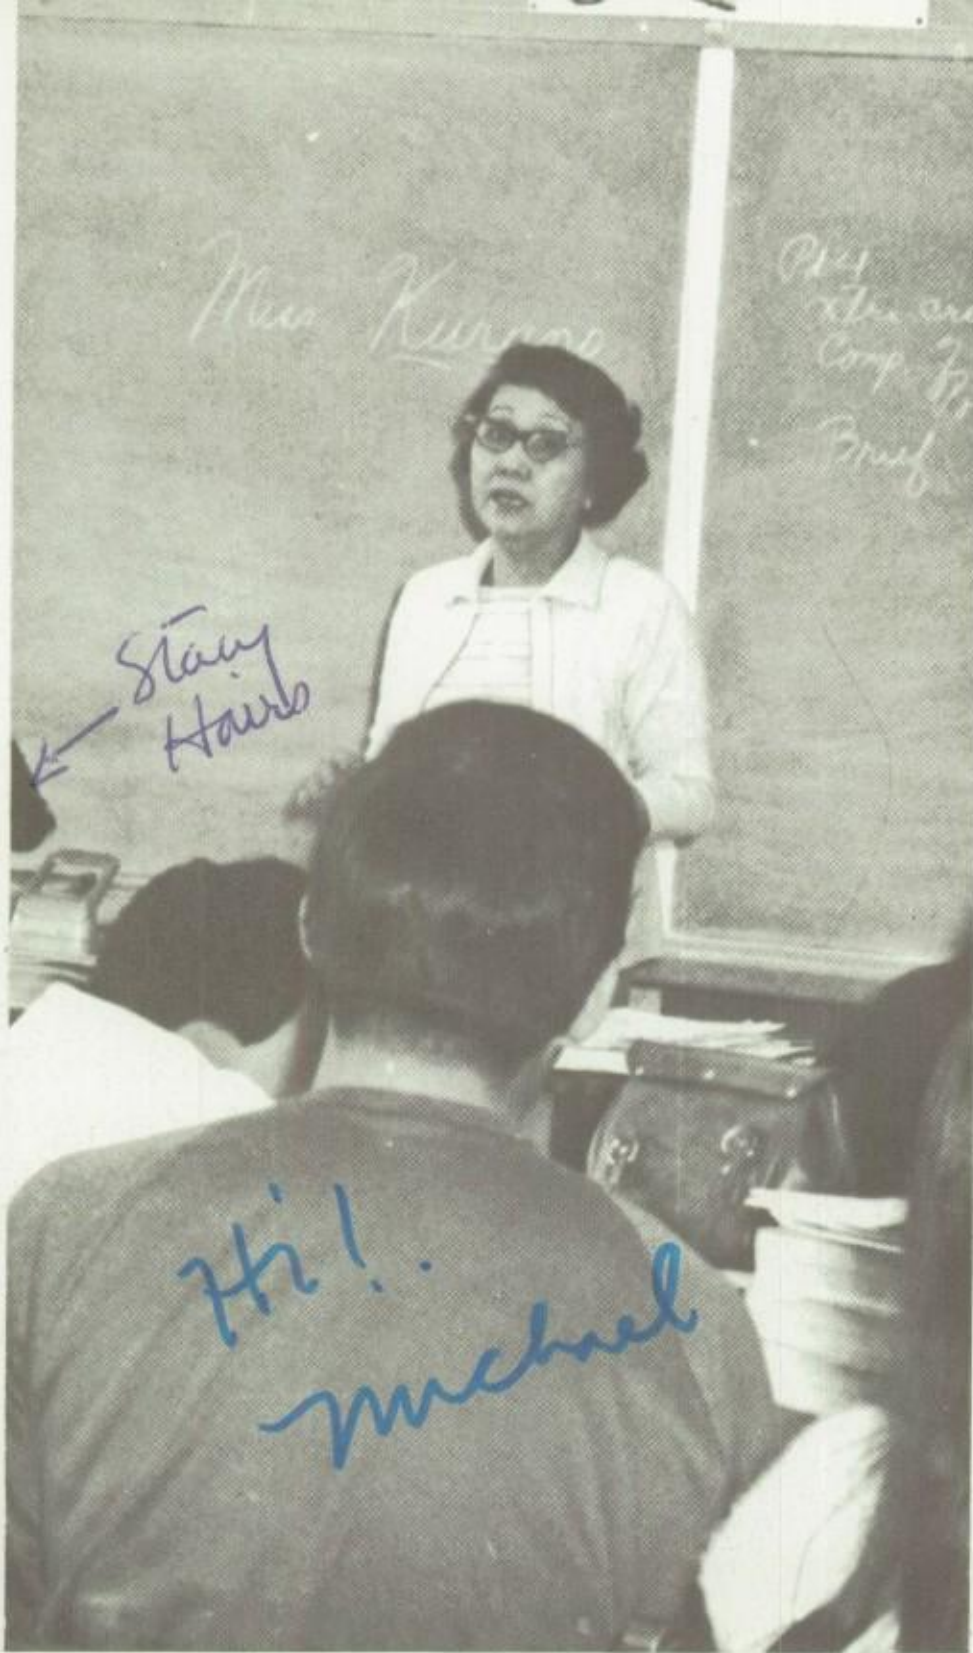

Current problems of the crucial Vietnam War Peace Talks and the heated Presidential race brought about an emphasis on retrospection and current issue studies by the three levels of history.

World History concentrated its efforts on the analysis of such occurrences as the split of Germany and the World Wars. Knowledge of all the conditions and situations were bases for unbiased judgement by the individual, textbooks being infrequently used.

U.S. History, too, studied wars but on a condenser scale, the American Revolution and the Civil War. Most emphasis, however was placed upon the workings, origination and effectiveness of the Constitution of the United States.

American Problems used current issues of magazines and books by such authors as Abe Fortas, and Senator Eugene McCarthy to study the problems of America today. Through these and discussion panels, students were able to formulate their own ideas on the new conditions which America now faces.

To gain a deeper perspective of history, advance courses of American History and European History were also offered in addition to the regular curriculum.

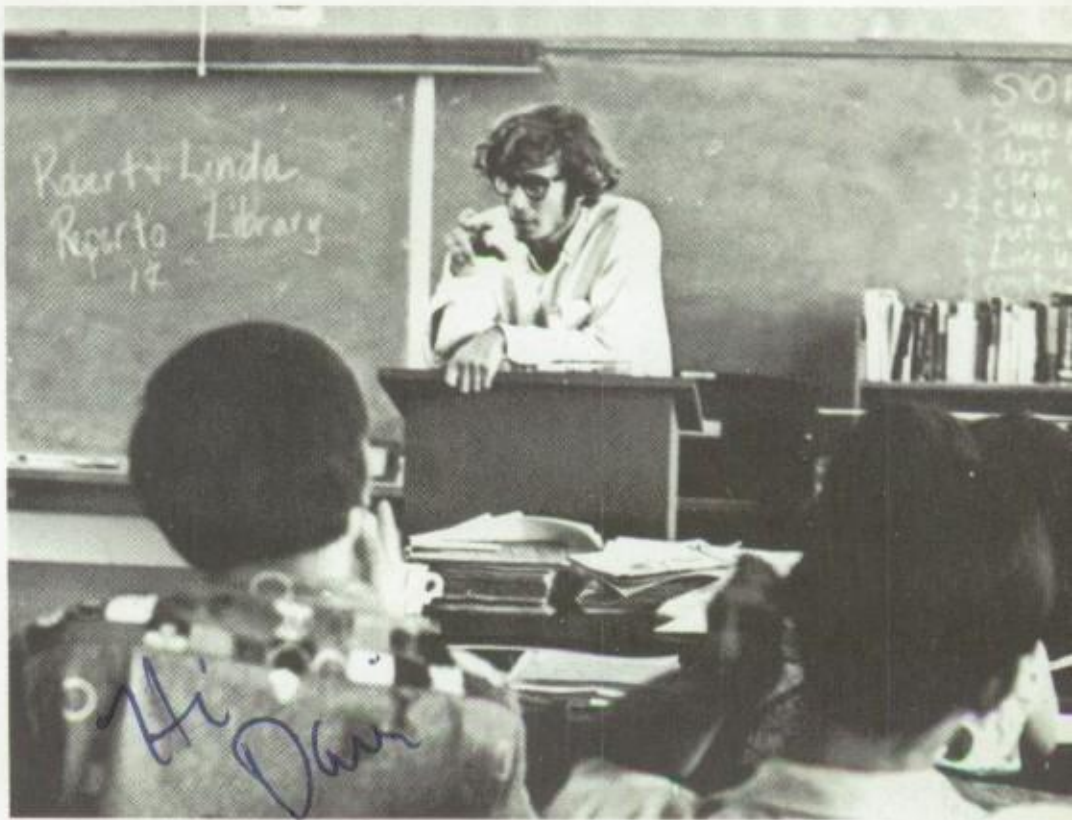

Seniors Calvin Yee, Marilyn Imura and Judith Jacobs present their ideas to an American Problems class in a panel discussion which combines student interest and knowledge.

Speaking on the behalf of candidate for mayor, Frank Fasi, is David Kaapu who discusses Fasi's views on the problems facing the City and County of Honolulu today at a history assembly.

McKinley students heard many controversial speakers, among which is Gene Parker of the Resistance in Mr. Hideyasu Eukuhara's period 6 American Problems class.

Mrs. Eleanor Ching explains the geographical effects of the Civil War to students in her period 5 American History class.

Scientific Studies Explore The Natural World

Numbered among the Science Department faculty are Hawaii's Biology Teacher of The Year Mrs. Yun Soong Jim and Mrs. Sueko Hirokawa, an international Biological Science Curriculum Study coordinator.

The department offered courses such as physics, biology, chemistry, and physical science to help the students gain the intensive study of the natural world. Although textbooks were essential, experiments and lectures were vital parts of the educational process. Physics dealt mainly with studies of simple machines, energy, force, and the physical changes in matter. After exploring the world of plants, animals, and microbes, biology students learned that the question of distinguishing between organic and inorganic matter is of utmost importance. Chemistry taught students about the make-up of substances and the changes that take place in them. The annual science fair exhibited students' projects. The best projects were entered into the annual Hawaii Science Fair.

A microscope projects enlarged images to two biology students verifying the behavior of organisms in the minute world.

A group of physics students, equipped with metal springs, generate waves for observation and research.

Accurate measurements of liquids are important in making solutions as demonstrated by senior Brian Iwasaki.

Miss Barbera Rogers assists senior Shirley Koike in her period 5 chemistry class in filling a plastic bag with oxygen in an experiment which compares the weights of equal volumes of gases.

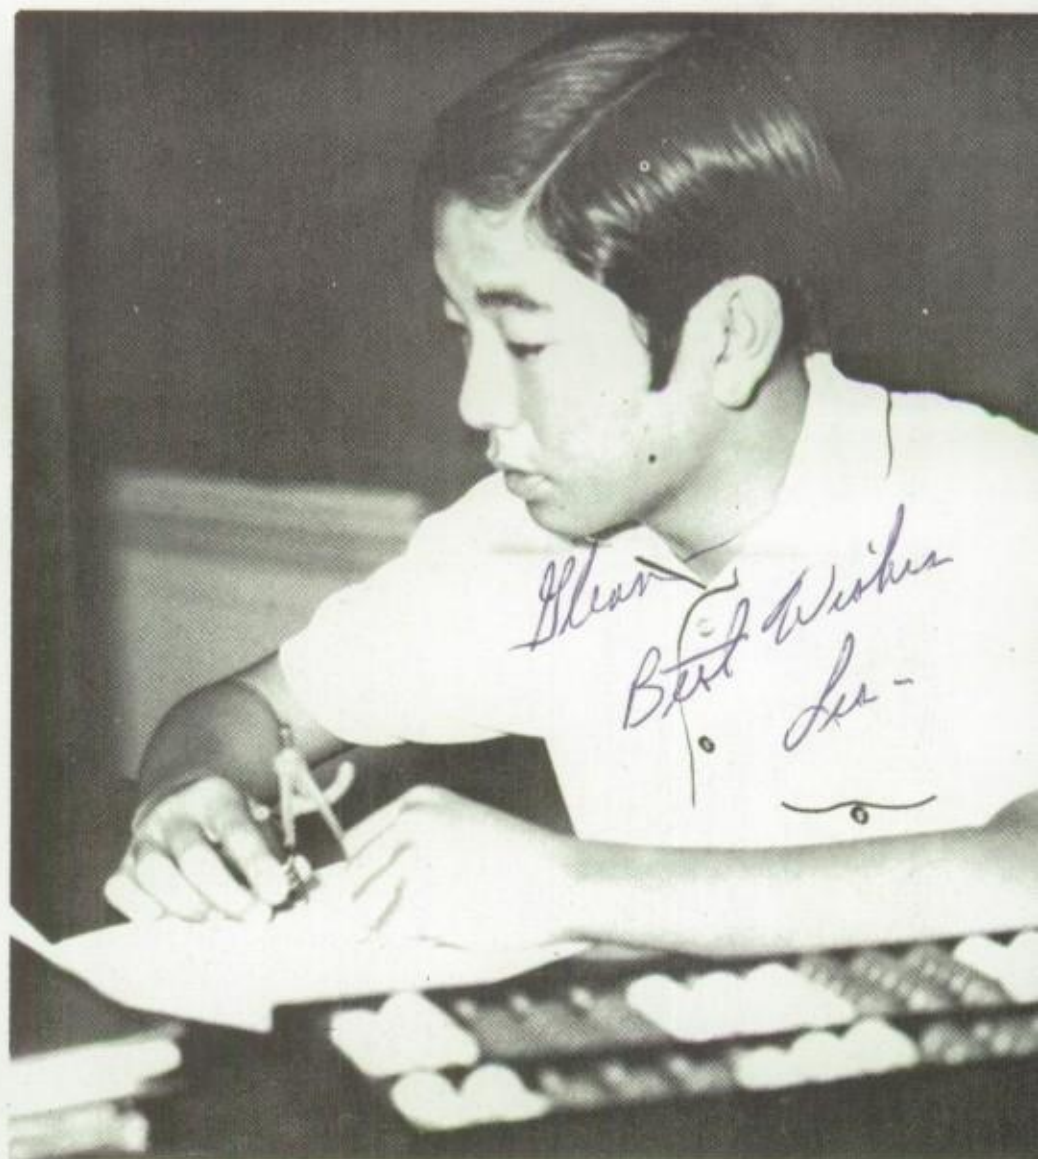

Mrs. Sueko Hirokawa instructs a student the proper usage of the 100 milliliter graduated cylinder in a BSCS class.

Course Revisions, New Concepts Increases

Mrs. Ella Tomita's period 6 Algebra 5/Trigonometry class observes plans of bridges and buildings while visiting an engineering firm.

Stephen Miyasato, senior, receives help in solving a problem from Mrs. Reverie Suzuki in her trig and analytical geometry class.

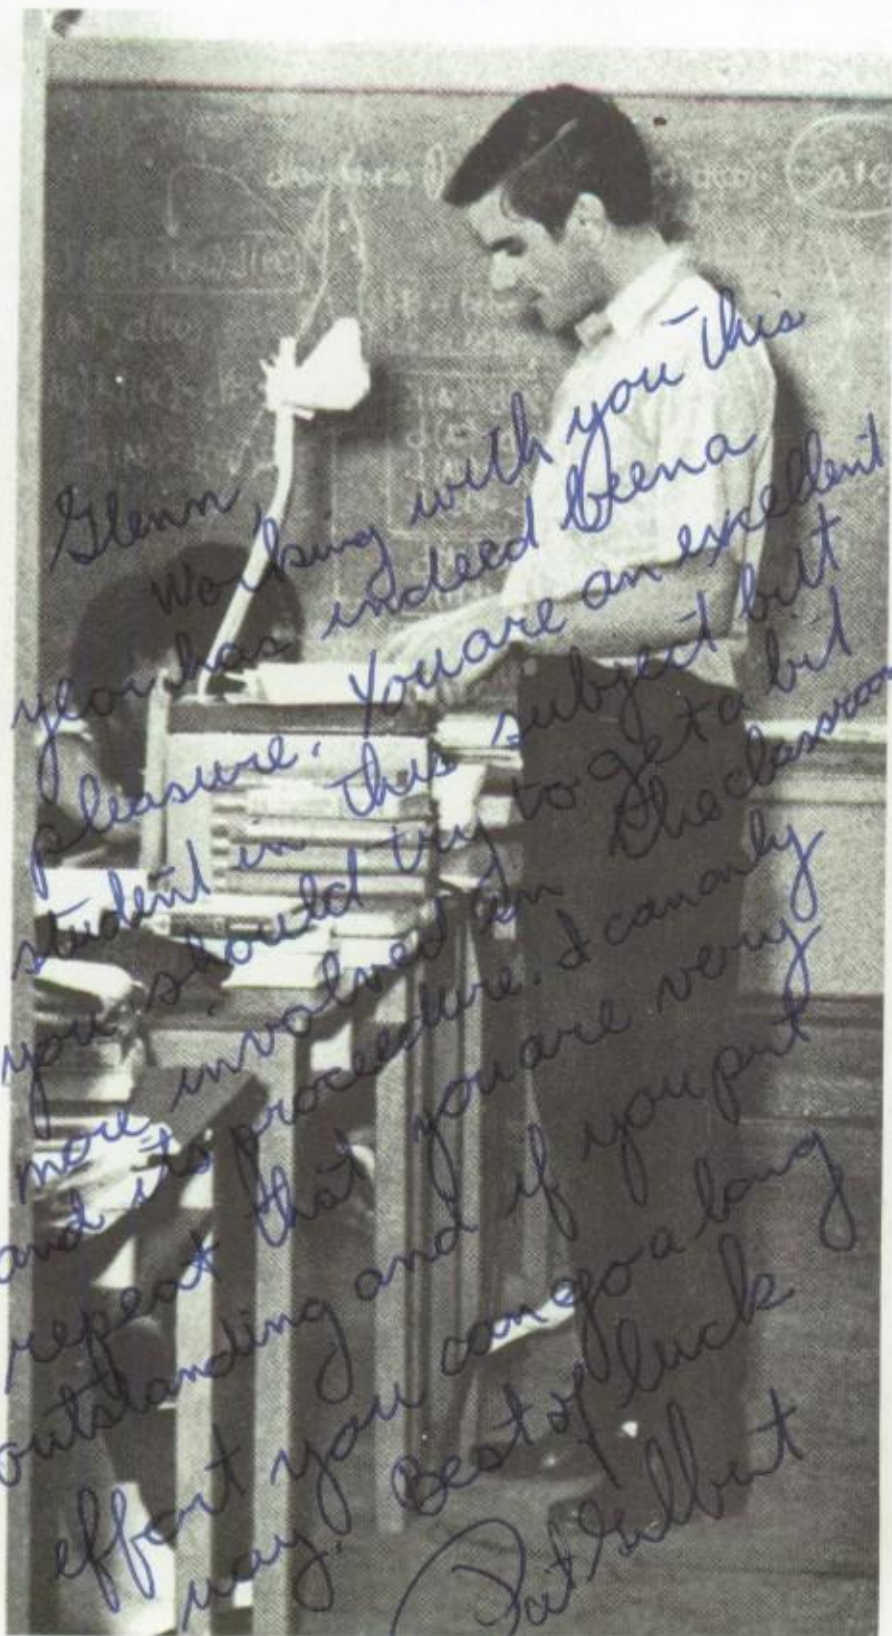

Junior Lester Oka concentrates deeply as he solves a problem with knowledge gained in his unified geometry class.

Math Proficiency

The field of mathematics keeps up with the rapidly changing world. Programs must be continuously revised and updated. That is why new courses are being offered each year. Added to the yearly offered courses of trigonometry, unified geometry, plane geometry, algebra, applied mathematics, and pre-algebra were UICSM I (Illinois Math) and analytical geometry. The UICSM I was a revised and readapted pilot program which was presented to average and below-average algebra 1-2 students for the first time. Analytical geometry was offered to students who were not in the Advanced Math Placement Program.

Beyond the minimum requirements, math courses were offered to fill the academic and vocational needs as well as interest and ability. Therefore, students were guided to make intelligent, long-range program plans to fit their own particular needs.

Mr. Patrick Gilbert organizes his notes to lecture one of his pre-algebra classes on concepts to be given in an upcoming test.

Optical illusions can be deceiving as student teacher Miss Gayle Yamami displays examples on a mathematics bulletin board.

Junior Carolyn Furuya explains the principal of solids to Wallace Hanzawa, senior, in Mr. Raymond Chung's plane geometry class.

Horticulture, Home Economics Provide Experiences For Everyday Living

In addition to learning the concepts of plant growth, horticulture students attained recognizance of career opportunities available to all who possess interest and skills in the growing of ornamental flowers, fruit trees, vegetables and potted plants.

To observe real-life horticultural activities, students visited the University of Hawaii experimental farms, controlled environment nurseries, the Foster Botanical Garden, and many garden shops. They were encouraged to engage in part-time employment in agricultural enterprises.

In the school land laboratory, the students nursed bonsai plants, orchids, and anthuriums. They constructed an authentic Oriental rock garden and conducted landscaping projects. Their plantings of newly developed varieties of corn, lettuce, and yielded commendable results, and their hibiscus and plumeria gardens attracted the admiration of visitors from all over the world.

As service activities, they participated in the campus beautification program and contributed almost a thousand container-grown plants for sale at the school carnival. One of the most interesting phases of the many activities in the horticultural classes was the students learned to prepare meals with their own garden fresh vegetables.

The Homemaking Department helped students to develop and prepare physically, emotionally, and mentally, as well as socially. The chief aim of the Home Economics Department was to develop future good homemakers.

Courses which were offered were Home Management, Family Foods, Family Living, Homemaking II, Home Nursing, Family Clothing, Clothing Appreciation, Personality and Dress, and Health and Safety.

Guided by three experienced instructors, students were exposed to facets of good home life through study of clothing, good management of the home, care of children, food and family relationships. Also, demonstrations and informative lectures gave them a better view of the fundamentals.

Horticulture students listen attentively as Mr. Charles Lum explains the use of fertilizer on plants.

In Mrs. Jane Yamashiroya's family clothing class, junior Evelyn Mow carefully presses her newly sewn muumuu.

With the use of two ingredients, adipic acid and hexamethylene-diamine, student teacher Miss Diane Masuo demonstrates the making of nylon in Mrs. Jane Yamashiroya's family clothing class.

Sandra Chun, junior, creatively weaves an original pattern in Miss Minnie Fujita's weaving class.

Comprehensive Art And Music Curriculum

Arts and crafts was a new course offered this year to the other established art courses such as ceramics, advertising, drawing, painting, photography, and weaving. In this course the importance and recognition of good craftsmanship through the exploration of a three-dimensional media, work with plaster, paper, clay, wire and metals, reeds, native fibres and seeds, and woods, were taught.

Special projects planned were a mosaic mural for the choir room by Mr. Charles Higa's ceramics class, a pre-carnival sale of art objects, participation in the National Scholastic Hawaii Regional, and an annual May Festival of Arts Exhibition.

The aim of the Music Department was to stimulate student interest to appreciate music.

Courses ranged from band to special interest instrumental. Band, consisting of beginning, concert, and symphonic bands, developed student skills on a certain instrument. Music appreciation taught a culture that would last through their lives. Writing music and developing interest in the musical field was covered in theory music. Choral provided a background for students planning to major in music in college and for those who wanted training to be able to sing in groups. Students who were beginners in piano playing and who planned a career in elementary education found the special interest instrumental course beneficial for their future aspirations.

Campus scenery often becomes a subject for avid art students such as senior Lilian Yamasaki who sketches a nearby tree.

Annually spreading Christmas spirit were members of the McKinley Band who played carols at the Sophomore Court on December 20.

Develop Latent Talent

Concert band percussionists sophomores Randall Isaki and Cy Shinkawa and junior Clyde Teruya develop precision through constant practice.

Hawaiian songs and colorful attire celebrated Aloha Day on Friday, October 25 at the McKinley auditorium.

With a firm grip on a baton, sophomore Jobie Kaeno paces himself for a distance of 110 yards in a four-man relay competition.

Boys in search of a military discipline and training found the Reserve Officers Training Corps, which was offered in four public high schools on Oahu, substantial in self-discipline, teamwork, and respect for constituted authority. This was the second year that this course was not compulsory. Various courses consisting of map reading, military psychology, first aid, and rifle marksmanship helped to familiarize the field of the nation's defense. McKinley's Drill Team, Color Guard, and Honor Guard were military organizations emphasizing individual development and advancement in skills.

The Physical Education Department familiarized the students to a program involving both the physical and mental health of the individual. This was done through a variety of sports and additional courses. Sports ranged from the recreational and team sports such as volleyball, soccer, golf, swimming, and bowling to the annual Physical Fitness Testing. All taught students basic skills, rules, and sportsmanlike attitude towards the game in addition to keeping them in the best of health. Health classes mainly were concerned with the mental health of the students. It was developed to present an awareness of personal hygiene and medical care as well as the problems of smoking, alcohol, and drugs of today.

The raising and lowering of the flags are a daily routine carried out by members of the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

Drills Intensify Efficiency In Foreign Language And Business Education

Foreign languages, including French, Japanese, Spanish, and Mandarin-Chinese, was accentuated at McKinley through the learning of basic skills involving listening, speaking and understanding. Textbooks and magazines in their specific language as well as in class drills on enunciation and pronunciation proved most effective. For added individual proficiency students attended the language lab regularly.

McKinley's language teachers provided in depth study since most visited the country of the language they taught. The language department chairman having returned from The Sorbonne in Paris was able to apply new ideas to the French class's annual newsletter which was sent to the Mainland.

To gain a wider perspective of business occupations, business education offered, in addition to book-keeping, shorthand, business machines, typing, and business math and English, new classes in briefhand, and office practice.

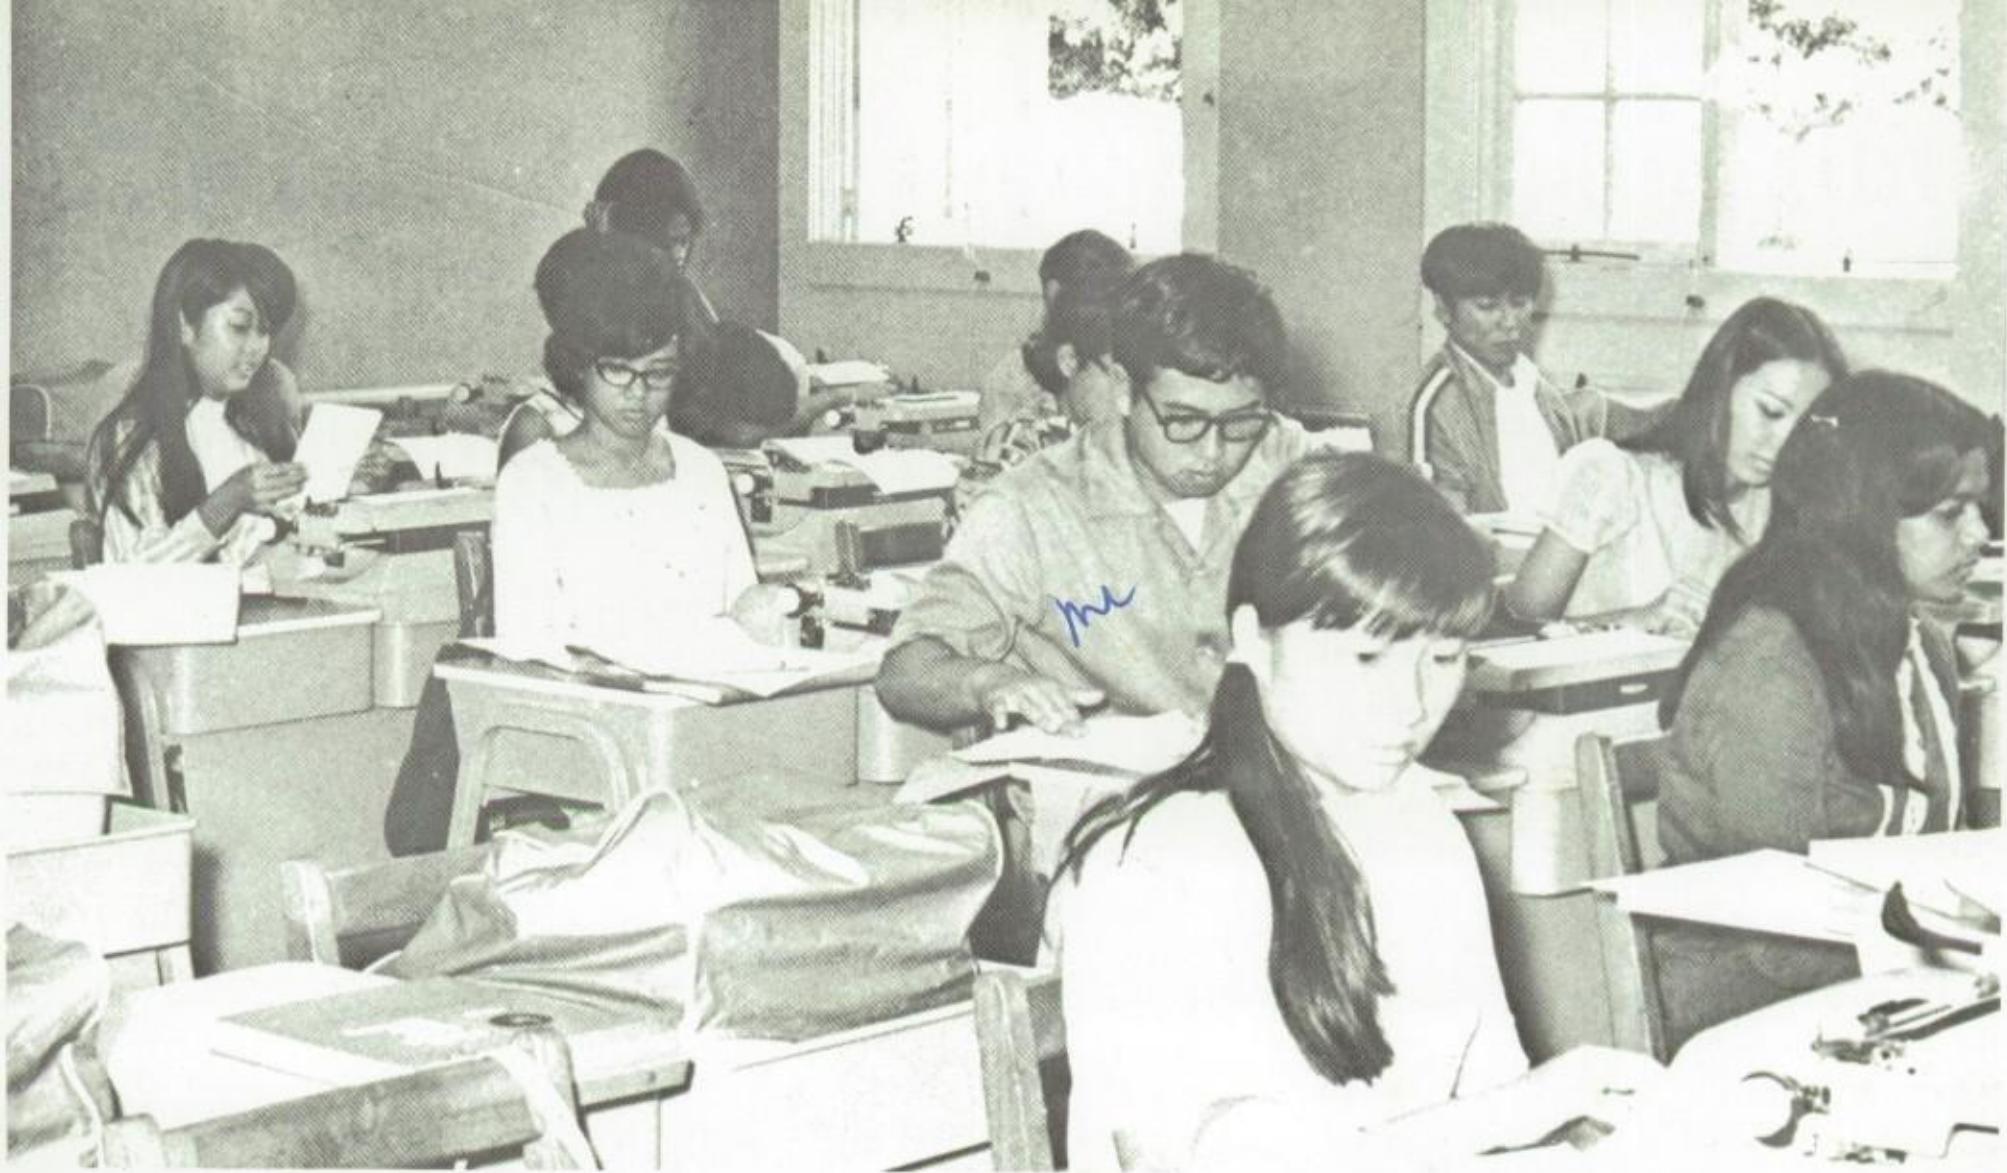

New techniques such as typing at least 150 envelopes per hour as well as new equipment consisting of IBM electric typewriters and more efficient business machines helped to increase student proficiency.

For additional knowledge of this advancing field, the business education classes attended the annual Hawaii Office Machine Show and observed the latest equipment available to the progressing business world.

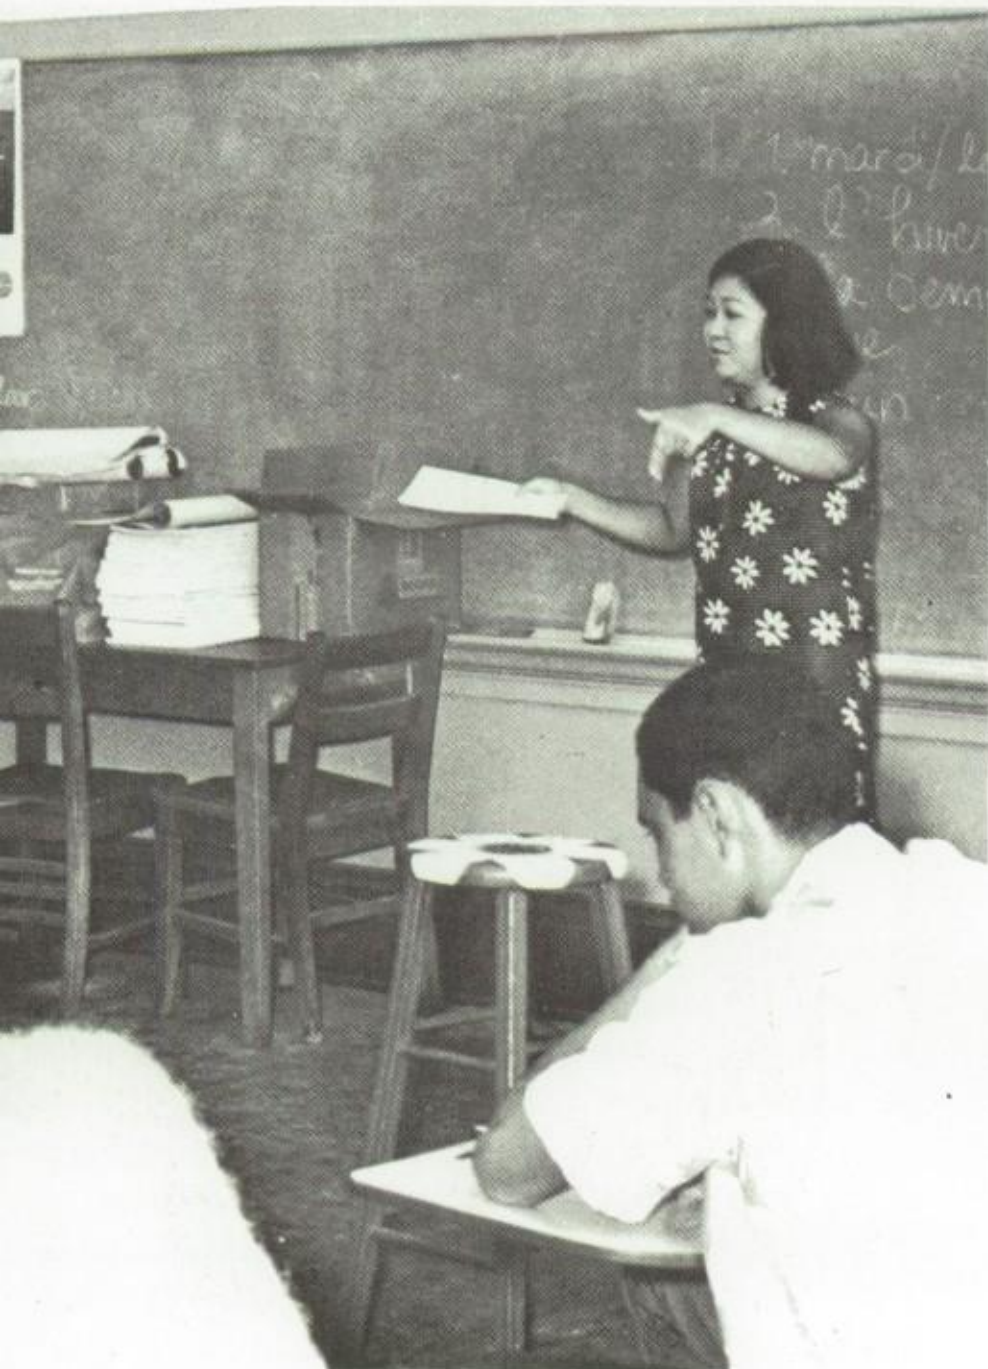

Doreen Muraki, senior, smiles at how rapidly difficult problems can be solved through the use of the calculator in business machines class.

Although a crowded classroom, the typing students in Miss Barbara Takara's period 5 class enjoy the newly arrived metal desks.

Individual study booths in the language lab provide an atmosphere of necessary concentration for foreign language students.

Building game and food booths for the annual Horizons Unlimited Carnival is one of the many tasks done in woodwork classes.

Senior Bobby Morales tediously sets his type in printshop class.

Special Courses Aid Individual Improvement

Industrial arts courses presented a prevocational and practical training in the field of auto mechanics, engineering, drafting, industrial drawing electronics, graphic arts, and woods.

Graphic arts courses were useful to students in learning to print McKinley publications. In printing 1-2 silk screen printing and creative problems were assigned as projects. Automotive mechanics was a practical course for students who wish to work in studying the operation and servicing of automobiles. Students in woods and wood technology courses studied the wood industry processes in practical application. For the MHS carnival, the woodwork classes built booths. They also took an excursion into Manoa to see the homes being constructed.

In metals and metal technology, students learned about metals and the use of metal power machines. Safety in the use of these machines was stressed. Electronics and electronic technology taught students about radios and other electric equipment. Some interested students chose to work toward a license in amateur radio. Architectural and engineering drawing courses were for students interested in learning the construction and elementary skills in engineering.

The visually handicapped program has been in existence since 1951. This program assisted the blind students in carrying on normally throughout their other classes. The resource room proved to be very effective for all the visually handicapped students. It provided the special equipment needed such as the braille large type book, the brailier, and the specially designated slate.

The course that was most in demand this year was driver education, a special class offered during off-school hours. A total of 250 students could be handled during the school year because of the limited number of instructors.

It developed the learner's ability in operating an automobile for a lifetime of safe and efficient motor vehicle operation. This in turn would promote an easier flow of traffic and will help greatly to reduce the number of accidental deaths caused on highways.

Galen Young, junior, converges his metal work on a grinding machine in one of Mr. Daniel Sakai's metal shop class.

Visually handicapped student, sophomore Buffa Hanse, listens and follows along in braille, a lesson by taperecorder.

To lead....
To be best....
Sought by the different factions
Never ending....

Glenn,

Hope you have fun during future years. Best of luck in whatever you wish to accomplish. It's been great knowing you this past year. Keep up your friendly personality and you'll always be popular. God bless you forever.

Aloha,

Gail S.

THE CLASS OF 1971

From the different junior high schools--Central, Kawanānākoa, Stevenson, and Washington--came the Class of '71. These sophomores were disorganized and green, but eager to add an indelible mark to McKinley High's long and illustrious history.

Numbering over 700, the class immediately took the distinction of being the largest of the school.

September was a busy month for the sophomores. It was full of adjustment, learning, and orientation to the high school life at McKinley.

In order for the underclassmen to meet the juniors and seniors, a "Welcome to McKinley" dance was sponsored by McKinley's student council.

Soon schedules were filled with football and other athletic games, pep rallies, and membership activities held by the many school-sponsored clubs.

By October, a kind of unity sprung up among the Class of '71. The election of class officers was held. The sophomores had a surprisingly high overall percentage of 67 for the primary election. Elected outright for the class presidency was Randall Isaki. In the general election, Glen Saito, Anna Yamashige, and Peter Rodriguez were elected to the posts of veep, secretary, and treasurer, respectively.

Green and white are the class colors, and the motto is, "Our Struggles Today Are Our Triumphs

Tomorrow". They chose Snoopy as their class mascot.

The final week of October brought a last minute rush to finish their Homecoming float and by November 1, McKinley's Homecoming, it was ready to enter the parade through the Honolulu stadium.

During the homecoming activities, the sophs witnessed the second bonfire of MHS's history. They cheered along side the upperclassmen at the game and attended the Saturday Homecoming dance.

Later in November, the sophs celebrated their class game as the Tigers took on the Kalani Falcons with the peppiest of pep squads performing at halftime.

The sophomores challenged the upperclassmen to a December "Christmas tree decoration" contest and scored a win over the upperclassmen as their winning tree was exhibited at the Winter Prom.

Sophomore attendants to the Winter Prom court were Leland Watanabe and Rosalina Del Rosario.

On April 15, the Class of '71 celebrated its class day with a look back at the 1968-'69 year and a look into their future as juniors and seniors of McKinley.

THE CLASS OF 1970

This was a great year. The Class of 1970 began its year by collecting a good deal of its class dues. Football season was the start of activities. The Junior Game against Farrington was exciting and wet. Soon after, Homecoming occupied the time of the Juniors. Under the direction of Jean Uehara, the class placed third in the float contest and the class yell competition.

Showing their goodwill, and directed by Daryl Lim the Junior Class decorated the cafeteria. Dean Horimoto acquired and set up the Christmas tree. Then a group of Juniors delivered the tree to the Shriners' Hospital. While there they sang Christmas Carols.

To help promote school spirit during the basketball season the Jolly Juniors challenged the Seniors to a "grudge-match" basketball game. The prize--a koa bowl. It was hoped that the winning class would pass on the challenge to each succeeding class.

The month of February found the class participating in the McKinley Carnival. They set up a game booth and decorated it, competing for the top prize of $10.

March 7 was the Junior Class Day. The assembly, the dance, and other events showed that the Juniors were a class with which to contend in any event.

The Pagoda was the scene of the Junior Prom. "Here in This Enchanted Place" was magnified by the beautiful ballroom and scenery.

Looking forward to their final year, the Class of 1970 held elections on April 16.

THE CLASS OF 1969

A look to the new and yet instilled with tradition characterizes the Class of '69. Tested by numerous standardized achievement exams earlier in the year, and pressured to prepare for the future, whether it be college or work, the seniors were able still to enjoy school life. The Senior Prom dances in memories as a relished possession, for the nostalgic and warm atmosphere of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel proved it truly "An Affair To Remember." And yet, still clinging to childhood remembrances, they celebrated in fanciful gaiety their class day and week, themed "Days of My Youth." The Senior Banquet and Senior Olympics held on St. Valentine's Day were some of the many cherished moments of senior year.

However fun-loving they were, these seniors were able to recognize their responsibility to McKinley and to the community as students and as citizens. They donated their time, money and initiative to try and accomplish new ways of extending help. The children of Shriner's Hospital became the recipients of these efforts as seniors even auctioned themselves off as slaves in exchange for Halloween candy. Their look to the new, to the growing, was their gift of $400 for equipment in McKinley's newly built Multi-Purpose building. Homecoming and its tradition spirited the Class of '69 into creating a prize-winning float.

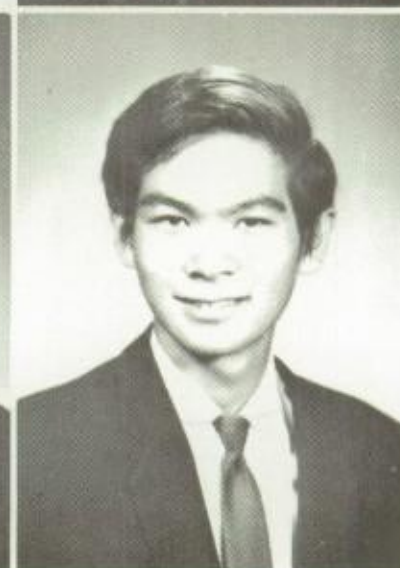

Commencement, June 8, was a zenith in their lives as seniors. The testing of voices for singing, the purchasing of announcements, the last-minute butterflies all ended that evening on a paper-strewn campus bordered with lollipop-shaped banyan trees. Knowledge has, indeed, been their key to the future.

Student Council's Efforts Become Realities

To promote the welfare of students attending McKinley High School and to cooperate with the school and the community, the Student Council for the 1968-1969 school year gave each student an opportunity to voice his opinion and to contribute to the betterment of McKinley through student representatives elected in the social studies classes.

Student Council officers provided various activities and projects such as a "Welcome" canteen for the sophomores and new students; supporting a foster child in the Philippines; participation in speakout sessions, urban renewal workshops, parliamentary procedure workshops, clothing drives, and a "Toys For Tots" collection; the Winter Prom; the celebration of President William McKinley's birthday; and sewing leis for Memorial Day. Committee chairmen, their committee members, and the entire student body assisted the McKinley Student Council.

Enthusiasm, Hardwork Produce Yearbook

Production of the 1969 Black and Gold went into action when Gayle Sasaki and Christine Sumiye were named co-editors in May, 1968. During the summer they worked on a theme and planned the distribution of pages among the sections. Deadlines were the responsibility of each section editor who assisted their own staff members. The staff of thirty-nine were students proficient in English. They wrote compos, captions, headlines; typed; and worked cooperatively and efficiently with each other. The primary goal of the staff is to produce a superior yearbook. This, they have accomplished successfully.

The Pinion, A Daily Accomplishment

Serving as one of the vital communication systems at McKinley is the Daily Pinion, a publication put out by four classes of newswriting. Mirrored by the unique challenge of being a daily paper, one of five throughout the entire nation, the staff stresses versatility in assuming more than one role in the paper's production. Reporters were also varitypers, and typists served as proofreaders--an interesting collage of responsibilities. Represented each year at the various SCOOP conferences, and a member of the Columbia Press, Quill & Scroll, and NSPA, the Pinion was subjected to constant changes in order to maintain its competitive stature. Entering into its fiftieth year of publication and continued services to McKinley High School and the community, the Pinion remains a "Daily Miracle."

Working to meet deadlines to have a picture in the paper, photographer Koichi Matsuoka cleans a negative before printing.

RESERVE OFFICERS TRAINING CORPS

In 1967, compulsory ROTC training gave way to volunteer service with the result that the corp, though smaller, is still enthusiastic.

Established in 1921, the ROTC has tried to maintain the high standards and discipline of military service. With these goals in mind, the ROTC officers, cadets, and their sponsors presented five parades including the Principal's, the Commander's, the Commanding General's, and Awards Day parades.

LETTERMEN'S CLUB

Participating in the Lettermen's Club were 75 members that led to the year-long plans for this club. Club projects and activities that took place this year were the Lettermen's banquet, their annual initiation, and work at the Horizons Unlimited Carnival. This club is organized to promote sportsmanlike qualities among athletes. Having a varsity letter and going through initiation are requirements for membership.

Junior Grant Tanimoto faces many embarrassing moments during the annual initiation of new Lettermen.

GIRL'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Promoting sports, recreation, leadership and good sportsmanship is the Girls' Athletic Association. Physical fitness is a keynote to participation. Club activities included volleyball, basketball, softball, track, gymnastics, archery, swimming, and bowling. An Aloha Award Dinner was held and the most outstanding student, one who had accumulated a high percentage of all the sports, was recognized.

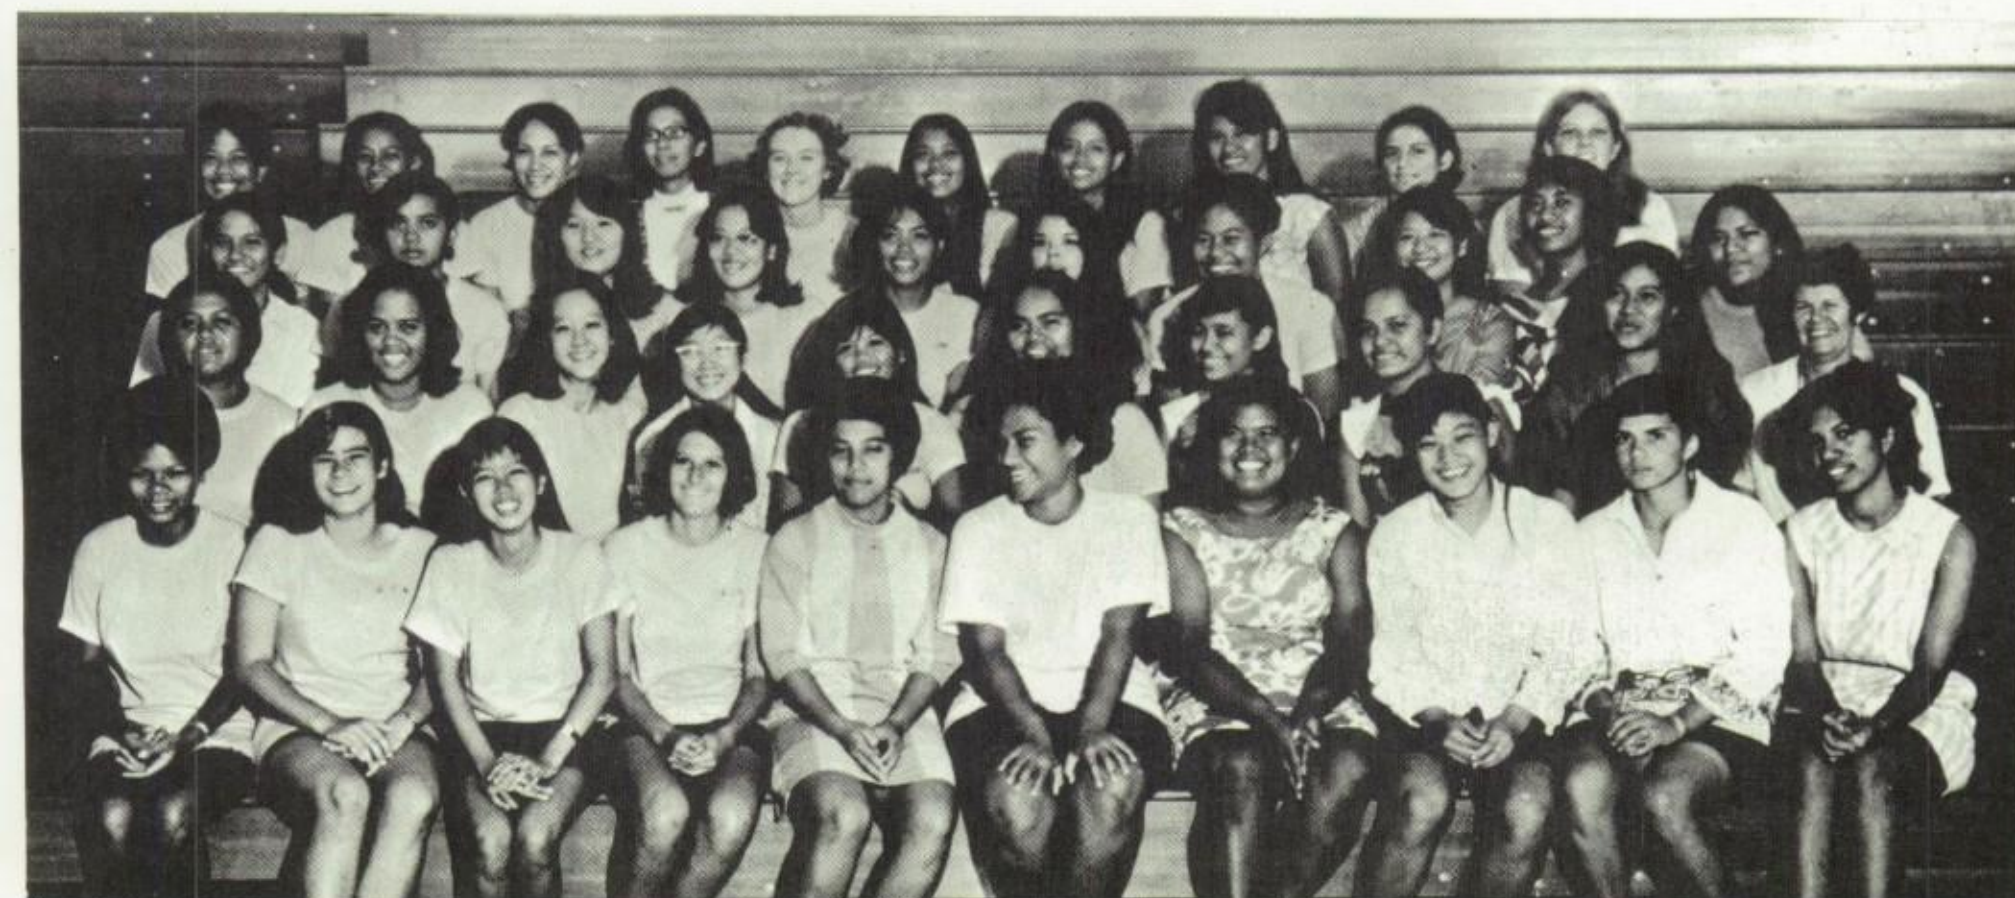

PEP CLUB

Membership approximately 150 enthusiastic and energetic students, the newly formed Pep Club made signs and banners for the football and basketball games, formed funnels for the football boys as they came on the field, operated the concession at the basketball games held at the gym, and participated in the Horizons Unlimited Carnival. They promoted school spirit and wearing of the Black and Gold.

Guest speakers were invited to present their own views concerning teaching to the FTA.

MANDARIN CLUB

The Mandarin Club participated in the March of Dimes drive and went caroling at the Palolo Chinese Home during the Christmas season. The Les Copains Francais encouraged the study of ancient and modern French culture and its people, language and literature. The students also acquired a better understanding of customs and gained an opportunity to speak and hear French. While serving their part in the carnival and selling MHS pins for a service project, the French Club had time for extra-curricular activities such as a luncheon and get-together party. McKINLEY THEATRE GROUP

Discovery of young talent is often made in the McKinley Theatre Group for they provide top-rate theatrical experience. Throughout the year, director James Nakamoto along with the students put out more than the usual effort to produce musicals, plays, assemblies, and other programs for the school and the public. Such effort and work was very evident in their successful performances of "Peter Pan," a musical in which several students "flew" with the aid of a flying machine. MTG also put out "The Rimers of Eldritch," a Polynesian show for the Aloha Week assembly, and a Laugh-In television-type show for the annual Horizons Unlimited Carnival.

RADIO CLUB

Now in its second year of operation, the Radio Club has 30 members. The only membership requirement is to be interested in amateur radio. The purpose of this club is to teach students the Morse code and radio theory to enable them to obtain the novice and general license. Projects for this year were to set up a "novice" station for beginners and to build up club membership.

Senior Eric Tengan enjoys the use of the electrical equipment such as the short wave set in electronics class where the radio club operates.

The alert Mick defensive unit led by tackle Blessing Bird and another defender brings down an Iolani ball carrier in the 21-21 thriller which opened the season for the Tigers.

1947 Championship

Capitalizing on a Damien fumble, quarterback Ronald Autele sparks a touchdown drive early in the game.

Sporting an impressive 7-1-1 record, the best since McKinley took the Interscholastic League of Honolulu title in 1947, the Tigers captured second place honors after one of the hottest championship races in the league's history and went on to battle to a muddy 0-7 defeat to the Iolani Red Raiders in the annual Thanksgiving Turkey Day classic.

Fresh from their Mainland preseason opener with Medford in Oregon which ended in a 14-21 loss, the Tigers dealt the Kauai Raiders a 26-7 blow in the explosive offensive and rugged defensive style which would be a Tiger trademark throughout the regular season. The Tigers staged a surprising 21-21 upset deadlock with Iolani, the eventual champs in the season's opener. A 13-7 win over Punahou was followed by a near victory over the favored Gobs of Farrington which ended in a 7-8 defeat in the final minutes of the mud and rain splattered game for the Micks' only loss of the '68-'69 season.

Win after win marked the rest of the season. The roaring Tigers drove to a 35-6 victory over Roosevelt; dealt Damien a 34-22 blow; added a 21-0 shutout over Kaimuki to the Homecoming festivities; upset the defending champions from St. Louis, 20-6; downed the high-flying Falcons, 20-7; and rolled up their season in the fine tradition of fighting Tigers with a 39-12 victory over the Kam Warriors.

Cubs Lay Groundwork For Varsity Season

Things were not looking up for the Mick Cubs after dropping their first three games to Iolani, Punahou, and Farrington in their debut of the ILH football season. They soon decided to do something about their 0-3 record and scored two victories over the Roosevelt Rough Riders and Damien Monarchs. (Due to an infraction of league rules, the Roosevelt game had to be forfeited).

Kaimuki managed to sneak by the Micks on a lone touchdown before the Cubs could switch to high gear to defeat St. Louis, clip the Kalani Falcons, and upset the favored Kam Warriors with a 25-yard field goal to finish the season on a winning note.

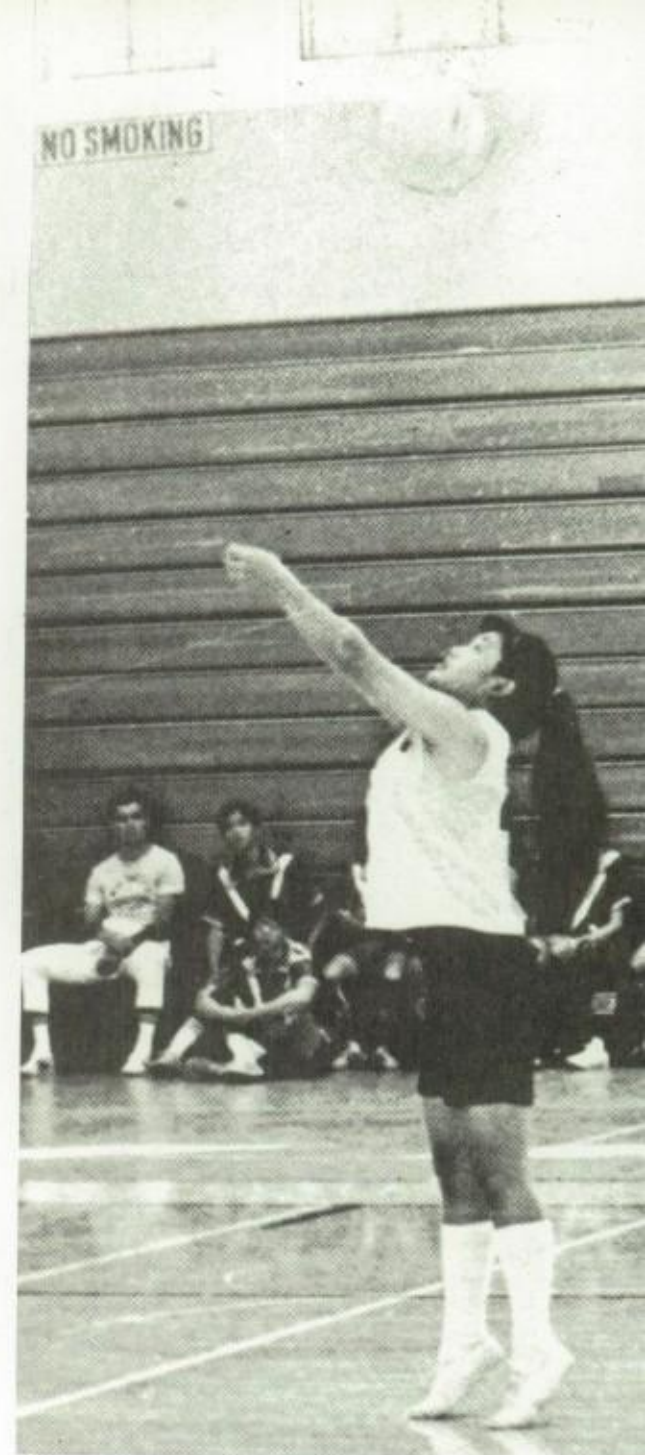

Michael Mahoe tries right end in his bid to advance the ball against Roosevelt who bowed to the Tiger Cubs, but later won by forfeit.

McKinleyettes Finish On Winning Note

A slow start but a strong finish marked the second consecutive competitive year for McKinley's Girls' Volleyball team. Losing most of the starting players at graduation coach Jane Schroeder was faced with the problem of rebuilding. Spirit, determination and daily practices paid off as the '68-'69 Girls' Volleyball team ended the Interscholastic League of Honolulu volleyball season against eleven other participating schools with two wins over the team from University High School and the team from Hawaii Baptist.

Holly Amaral (25) picks up a serve and feeds to Claire Hanashiro (11) as the girl netters from McKinley scored a win over Hawaii Baptist.

Back row: Thomas Okubo, Clifford Kaneshiro, Ronald Morikawa, Sgt. Floro Houghtailing, Howard Kawada, Dennis Deluze, and Dean Nako.

Sharpshooters Take Second In State, Kam Tournaments

The potential and experience was there with half of the team returning for another season, but McKinley's rifle team lost some close matches and managed one win against ten losses in the regular Interscholastic League of Honolulu rifle season.

However, the two tournaments the Tigers entered told a different tale. Competing in the Twelfth Annual Kamehameha Presidential Invitational Rifle Tournament, the quintet of Clifford Kaneshiro, Howard Kawada, Ronald Morikawa, Dean Nako, and Lester Oka placed second in a field of nine other private and public high schools throughout the State. Morikawa also took the second place individual title.

Highlighting the season was the Hawaii State Junior Sectional National Rifle Championship at Baldwin High School on Maui. There, the Tigers took three team and individual honors, capturing second place in team competition, winning the High ROTC award for having the highest shooting score of ROTC rifle teams and having a state champion in the Class A division with Dennis Deluze taking the title.

Wrestling In Second Competitive Year

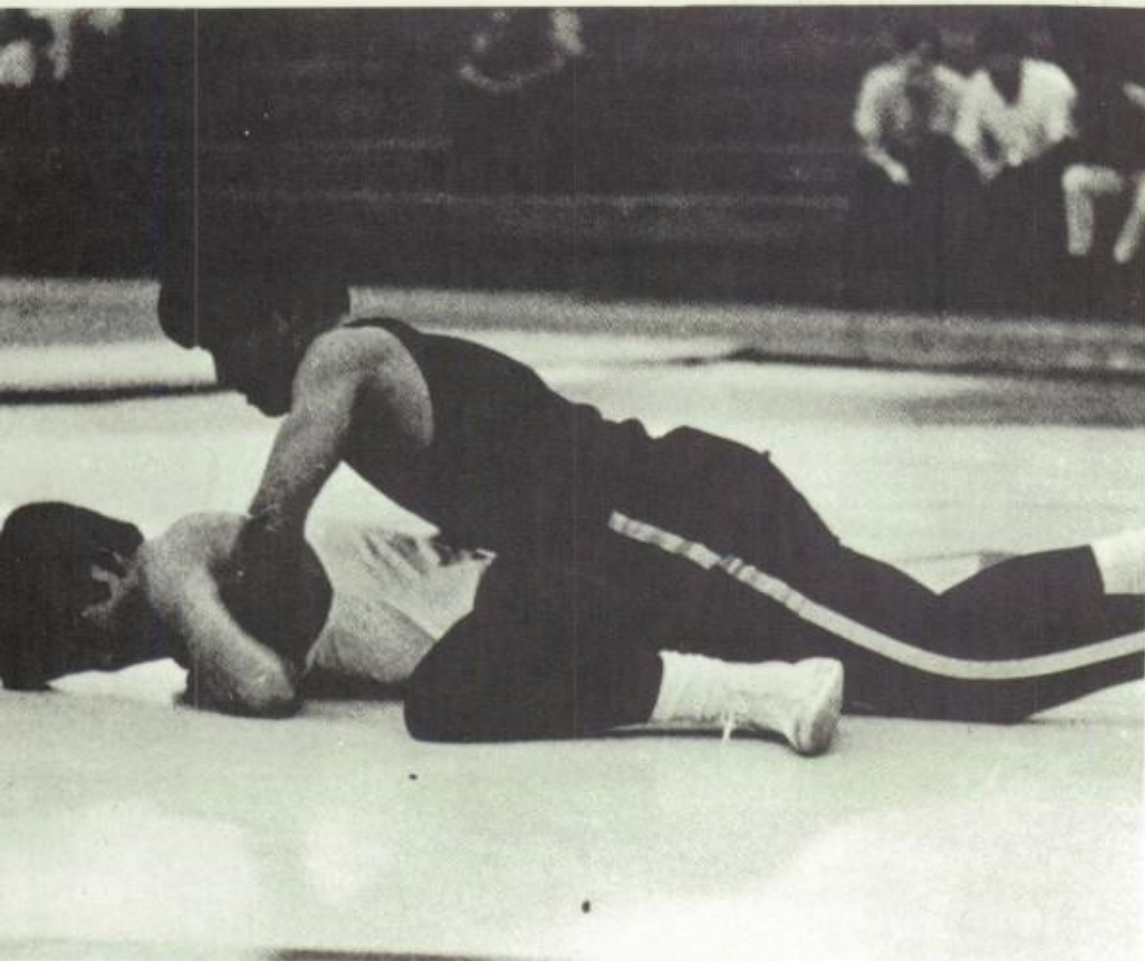

Blessing Bird grapples with his opponent as he tries to take him down in the 180-pound division during a match with St. Louis.

A local sportswriter for a major daily newspaper observed that the McKinley wrestlers are "the most improved team in the league" and their short two-year history supports his statement. In only their second year of competitive wrestling, the Tigers compiled a respectable 6-6 record for a fourth place finish in the ILH--a far cry from last year's 0-12 win-loss record and a last place standing.

A definite improvement in wrestling techniques, plus a newly acquired self-confidence and game experience, proved to be the difference this year as the Tigers scored decisive victories and lost close matches in the two-round wrestling competition.

Maui was the site of preseason action for the Mick wrestlers who also competed in the post-season ILH and State Championships for individual honors.

The McKinley Cub wrestlers finished their season with a 1-5 record, scoring their win against the Iolani Red Raiders in junior varsity action.

Dexter Onaga, competing in the 127-pound division, applies an arm lever on his opponent in a match ending in a Tiger victory over Iolani.

Near Upsets, Close Wins Mark Cage Action

A glance at the scoreboard will reveal that the 1969 McKinley cagers were real Tigers--exciting, hustling, and upset-minded--battling all the way against even the top-seeded teams in the league. What it doesn't show are the facts that the Tigers lacked height, game experience, and returning starters, but had a persistent problem at the free throw line.

Sporting a 3-0 preseason record, and with the Public School, Maui, and Punahou tournaments under their belts, the Tigers opened their season against Farrington but ran into foul trouble and lost despite a strong second half. A third quarter scoring spree and tight defense accounted for their next two wins against University High and Mid-Pac before running into foul trouble again and dropping three games to Iolani, Kalani and Damien. Two thrilling victories followed with the Micks edging Roosevelt after going into overtime and St. Louis in the final minutes of playing time. The Micks, hindered by inconsistency at the foul line, met defeats to the top three teams in the league Punahou, Kaimuki and Kam. Missing 13 of their charity shots, the Mick five ended the season with an upset loss to the Maryknoll Spartans.

Overtime Victory Highlights Cub Season

Fresh from three preseason wins against one loss, the Mick Cubs dominated the first weekend of junior varsity action as they scored two consecutive victories over Farrington and University High. Failing to muster a strong shooting game against the other ILH teams, the Cubs ended the season with a 4-9 record. Their other pair of successful outings came at the end of the season with a thrilling double overtime victory over Hawaii Baptist and a close win over Maryknoll.

Girls Place Second, Boys Third In Public

Eighteen medals were awarded to McKinley's swimmers as the girls took the runner-up spot and the boys third in the Public School Championships which opened the 1969 varsity swimming season. Despite a lack of depth McKinley also placed among the top teams in the league and state during the next four meets. The MIT Relay Championships resulted in a fourth place finish for McKinley in the girls' division and a fifth place tie with Farrington for the boys. A new record was set by Kathy Chong for the butterfly in the ILH Varsity Championships as 14 medals were presented to the Micks who took fifth in the girls' division and sixth in the boys'. In the first of two state-wide meets, the Kaimuki Invitational, McKinley finished in eighth place in the combined team standings. Twenty other schools throughout the State with over 300 participants entered the Hawaii State Championships. With only ten varsity swimmers entered, McKinley's girls took a surprising fourth while the boys tied Farrington for eleventh place as Kathy Chong, the state champion for the butterfly and individual medley, broke records for both events in the last meet of the 1969 swimming season.

In the two junior varsity meets, the girls took second place honors while the boys took eighth in the Junior Varsity Relay Championships and in the ILH Junior Varsity Championships, the girls took third and the boys tied Kam for sixth place.

Successful Preseason, Returnees Aid Ball Club

With a 6-4-1 preseason record under their belts, the McKinley varsity baseball team entered the 1969 ILH season. Holding scrimmage games with such teams as Waipahu, Leilehua, Maryknoll, Mid Pacific and Farrington, the ball players were able to develop teamwork and improve their individual defensive skills. Scrimmages played a major role in the outcome of the season, allowing the coaches the opportunity to spot the areas needing improvement.

After a fairly good season last year which was a rebuilding year, the Tigers have nine returning players with seven starters among them. This abundance of returnees brought with them the experience of past seasons to provide leadership for the underclassmen.

Opening their regular league competition in March against the St. Louis Crusaders, the Tigers were considered as contenders for the post-season playoffs.

Missing: Derrick Oshiro.

JV Survives Through Tough Competition

Thriving on their hitting ability, the junior varsity baseball team entered their 1969 ILH season late in March against St. Louis. McKinley sophomores and freshmen from feeder schools Washington, Central, Kawanakoa, and Stevenson made up the 19-man squad. Being a little "green," the Cubs made pitching and fielding their prime objectives during the daily practice sessions which paid off as the Cubs compiled a winning 4-1 preseason record. Backed by the experience gained from preseason outings, the Cubs, the backbone of next year's varsity squad, competed successfully in regular play against stiff competition.

Netters Open Season With Double Win

With a small nucleus of returning lettermen, the McKinley netters faired quite well as they opened their regular ILH tennis season in January. The girls varsity won a decisive 4-1 victory over Roosevelt in their opener while the boys edged Kaimuki, 3-2.

The teams showed good form, enabling them to compete successfully with the other eight schools.

Participation in the post-league and State tourneys in April marked the end of the 1969 tennis season.

Daily practice paid off for the junior varsity girls, a team of inexperienced netters without any returning players, as they edged Maryknoll in their season's opener, 3-2. The boys team, dominated by freshmen, suffered a 5-0 defeat to Kam in their initial game.

JUNIOR VARSITY TENNIS TEAM, front row: Christine Yamamura, Lois Aimoto, Lynne Ajiroji, Sharon Song, Karen Kuraka, and Gail Wakatsuki. Second row: Wendell Uejo, Faye Yoneshige (captain), Linda Chin, Elizabeth Arney, Christine Mizuno, Jo-Ann Taniguchi (captain), Myra Kamikawa, Linda Yamauchi, and Ethel Tamuru. Seasoned Spikesters Set Pace For Gruelin

Underclassmen dominated the track lineup as the Micks, led by state champion Richard Vasconcellos and other seasoned tracksters entered another year of league competition. Preseason dual and triangular meets with Kaimuki, Punahou, St. Louis, Iolani, Damien, Roosevelt, and Kalani provided a chance to see how McKinley would fair against other teams in regular ILH competition and to see whether an individual should concentrate his efforts in sprints, distance events, hurdles or the various field events. Following a preseason meet at Lahainaluna, Maui, the Micks opened the regular season early in April.

Hindered by the lack of depth, the girls track team entered their second year of league competition late in March. The two preseason triangular meets with Kaimuki, Farrington, Kamehameha and Roosevelt revealed an all-round team excelling in all the events. With only four returning tracksters, the team's success depended upon the performance of the underclassmen who comprised the bulk of the team.

The top sprinter in the league, Richard Vasconcellos, is the first to the tape marking the finish of the 100-yard dash, followed by other Mick tracksters Ryo Kobata in third and Cyrus Miyamura in fourth place.

Lawrence Oyabu is the first to clear the low hurdle with Glen Shinsato close behind in the novice division.

Gaining momentum, Arthur Seki heaves the shot put.

Student Life with GLCH

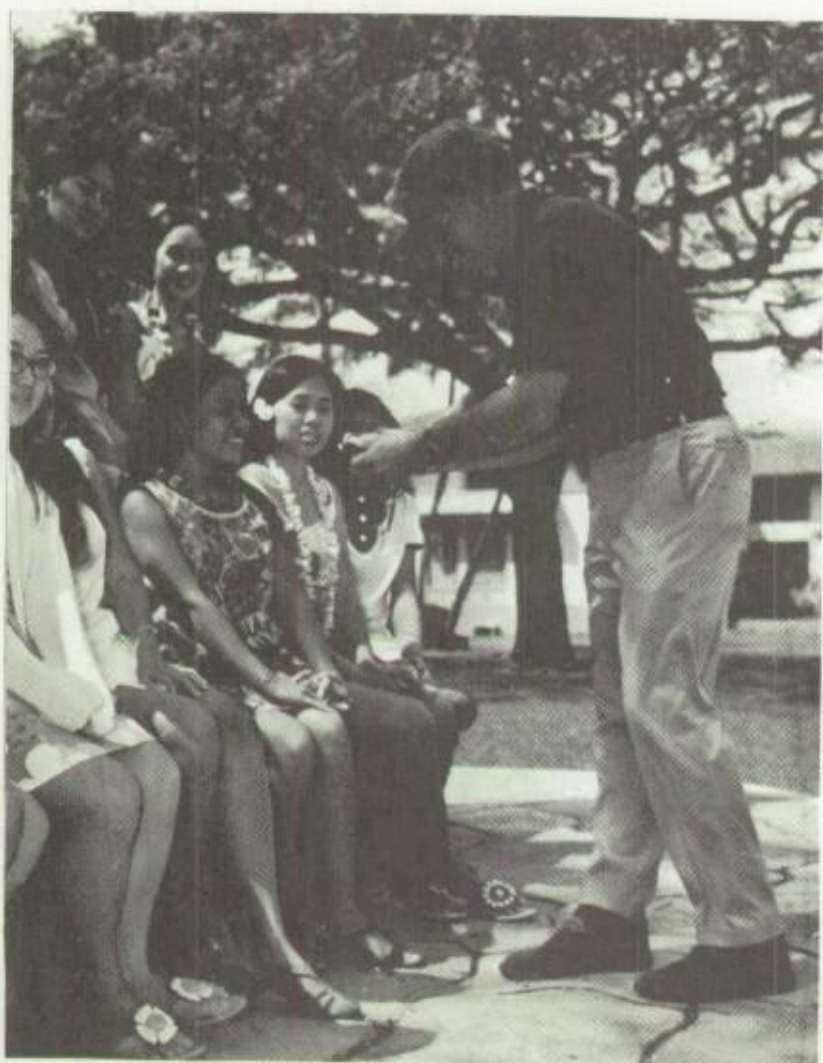

SEPTEMBER

At the Aloha Assembly, sophomores, new students and teachers were introduced to McKinley High School on the 6th. "Toe Jamboree," a welcome canteen, was held for the newcomers on campus on the 20th. The SCAT and STEP tests for the sophomores and seniors were taken on the 23rd through 26th. Sixty-five senior girls competed for the eleven honorary ROTC positions. McKinley's first game of the football season on the 21st ended in a 21-21 upset deadlock with the Iolani Red Raiders.

OCTOBER

Anticipating a progressive year at McKinley, the sophomores went to the polls on the 10th with a record-breaking turnout. A newly acquired method of registering and voting was applied as students were allotted time in their respective social studies classes. Underclassmen received an opportunity to rule when seniors were auctioned off in exchange for candy, a donation to Shriner's Hospital Halloween gaieties. In preparation for Commencement, seniors were scheduled for Black and Gold picture-taking.

NOVEMBER

The gridiron performances became the center of attraction as November spelt homecoming, game dedications to sophomores and seniors and a berth in the ILH playoffs. The Saturday night canteen to celebrate the victory over Kaimuki added to the homecoming festivities of float building and the bonfire. It also served as R&R for the upperclassmen advised to take the SAT test that morning for college entrance. Class officers were installed on the 8th in the traditional manner of an induction ceremony.

DECEMBER

The precision and skill of the drill team and color guards helped celebrate the yuletide spirit as they paraded through the downtown area. Spreading the season's greetings at McKinley became an easier happiness as the student council organized a card collecting and distributing system. The holidays opened on the 10th with a half-day of academics while evening brought the Winter Ball, "Christmas by Candlelight." Held at the Ilikai, it illuminated a desire of "Peace on Earth, goodwill towards men."

PANORAMA . . . 1969

JANUARY

MHSers joined other Oahu high schools in soliciting tickets for the exhibition game by the Gizz Kids to raise money for the Scholarship Fund for Hawaii's College Bound Handicapped Students. Final reviews of the mainland colleges were offered by their respective representatives. The 31st commemorated Black and Gold Day, a traditional tribute to the school and to President William McKinley. Students dressed in black and gold colored the campus graced by President McKinley's lei-bedecked statue.

FEBRUARY

Strains of classical music echoed throughout the auditorium, reminiscent of the Symphonic Band's Pops Concert. Insurance for well-chosen courses were made when underclassmen expended a whole day on registering for the following year. Seniors filled the void by making this Valentine's Day one of sports with the Senior Olympics. The weekend honoring President's Day paralleled the Horizons Unlimited Carnival, raising funds to send selected students to the destinations of Canada and Washington, D.C.

MARCH

Evidence of underclassmen power prevailed as the juniors dominated the 14th as their day. "Flours," the canteen held that evening, evolved to serve two purposes when juniors co-sponsored the social with the Senior Recognitions Committee. Entering the bag-collection contest sponsored by Holsum and K-POI at a late stage, students were able to place McKinley in the upper ten depicting school soul. Though only in their second year of ILH rounds, McKinley played host to the State Wrestling Championships.

APRIL

A liberal dress code policy replaced the old, administering the final quarter, as a result of student requests. It allowed the individual to govern their own attire. The sophomores anxious for a day of fete, spent the 25th as a release from the everyday norm. The juniors acquiring the Pagoda Ballroom created a memorable effect for the gala event "Here In This Enchanted Place." After a rollicking time at the Senior Banquet, etiquette and fashions were studied at an assembly notifying seniors of the Senior Prom.

MAY

Approached by the remaining month of actual academics, seniors dominated May in their antics privileged only to the upperclassmen. A week of events expressing a utopia of ideas scheduled seniors daily with recreation and happenings. The time-consumed planning of the Senior Prom paid off as the long-awaited affair was attended at the Royal Hawaiian Regency Room. Achievements by McKinleyites bringing honor to the school were recognized as awards were presented during a specially held assembly.

JUNE

New medias of life became realities for the class of 1969 in observing their Graduation on the 8th. Bidding the school their fondest aloha they were endowed to pursue the varying paths of education and careers. Weather wasn't the only heat felt as the coming months of vacation warned students still in school to finalize summer plans. And there were also those students needing a few more credits or extra courses, and so, reluctantly they registered in the available summer school program.

Assemblies, Visitors Enlarge MHS World

Keeping rhythm to the sounds of Hawaii, the enchanting hula girls enthralled the Aloha Week audience. Selected members of the choir also sang Hawaiian songs and the entire choir performed at Thanksgiving. McKinleyites broadened their horizons as they ventured into other countries of the world by viewing the World Tour films. Students benefitted by the guidance programs that were scheduled especially for them. Advised by James Nakamoto, co-chairmen Lilan Yamasaki and Colleen Kam served as mistress' of ceremonies at the assemblies which proved both enjoyable and educational for all.

Visiting the McKinley campus were distinguished guests from distant lands, guest speakers including politicians campaigning for office. Members of the alumni also returned to back the team at gametime.

Victory, and Dance

Was it the bonfire's golden flames against the black sky that spurred the Tigers on to victory? Perhaps, but at any rate, Homecoming '68 spelled victory as the Tigers rolled over the Kaimuki Bulldogs in the nighttime clash. Elaborated with distinctive floats and a royal court representing each class level, Homecoming offered a bevy of appreciation to her alumni as well as extra-curricular activities for her students. In welcoming back her former scholars, McKinley paid tribute to her sons and daughters of yesteryear and renewed old alliances. Homecoming '68 moved at a modern pace as the gym echoed with the sounds of rock bands during the last night of the celebration of a time-worn tradition.

The baseball field becomes a sparkling fun land.

CARNIVAL TIME!

Brightening the McKinley athletic field on February 21 and 22, were the glittering lights of the fifth annual carnival. Squeals of delight and laughter came from crowds who found the exciting rides and games, delicious food, country store products, and the bargains at the white elephant sale tigerific. Hard-working parents, students, and faculty are credited with the success of the carnival. Proceeds financed registered school clubs' projects, scholarships for deserving seniors, and sent selected delegates to Washington D.C. and Montreal and the band to a neighbor island.

Pep Squad Contribute

Ready-O! Let's Go! From the top of the bleachers at the stadium, you can hear energetic pep chairman and co-chairman, Coleen Nomura and Radford Sagarang, respectively, down on the field. Promoting game spirit during the various sports seasons, the vivacious songleaders kept time to "Judy's Cha-Cha" as the peppy cheerleaders gave the "Aloha Yell" to the opposing school. Victory cries were heard from the MHS cheering section as a result of hard fought games. Tigers with tear-filled eyes and hoarse voices cheerfully waved their pom poms while singing "Black and Gold".

This squad of 13 experimented with new routines, held inter-school rallies, pep assemblies, and supported the team by selling colorful ribbons. All efforts were rewarded when the team captured the Public School trophy and second place in the ILH standing.

During the year at official parades, ROTC cadets were recognized for distinguishing themselves in high military standards. Development of speech and English techniques rewarded students who won top honors at tourneys and in essay contests. On February 15, the Motor Building Contest held at the Ala Moana Banquet Hall found McKinleyites nimble fingers working at top speed. Paintings, watercolors, linoleum prints, and pottery pieces of talented tigers won various awards and were displayed for the National Scholastic Art Contest. The annual Science Fair inspired curious minds to pursue individual scientific interests by entering projects in March. Skilled craftsmen brought honor to McKinley with beautifully handcrafted wood work.

Sugar and spice and everything nice, that's what McKinley socials are made of. Swinging to the beat of the Lovin' Souls, upperclassmen welcomed the sophomores at a canteen in the school gym. A night dance brought homecoming to a close as the gym vibrated with the sounds of rock bands. In December the Ilikai's Pacific Ballroom provided a romantic atmosphere for a "Christmas by Candlelight." The juniors honored the Class of '69 at a recognition dance during the Junior Class Day. Instead of the usual precision marching, ROTC personnel swirled around the HIC Pikake Room in April at their annual Military Ball. "Here In This Enchanted Place" was the theme of the Junior Prom at the Pagoda International Ballroom while seniors will always have "An Affair To Remember" at their prom held in the Royal Hawaiian Regency Room on May 24.

Cafeteria Serves Up Nourishing Lunches

Completed in 1961, the cafeteria was bustling with the eagerness of receiving a nourishing, well-balanced meal. Among the other goodies served were cakes, cookies, and pies. The cafeteria was also a gathering place of student friends, as well as the many distinguished guests who dined there. In the month of October the staff members observed National Lunch Week with student leaders, teachers, community leaders, and businessmen in attendance.

Been good having you for a friend I hope

you appreciate my harmonica playing - if you like I plan some more this summer

pals
 Paul

Sorry,
 Road Closed

Glenn,
 This past year I had alot of fun being in both your
 English and History classes
 I won't say anything about Magob's pizza!
 If I know you, you
 just might get' swell headed about it. nah!
 (you know I only joking)
 Best of luck in the future. Be good, take care, and we seeing ya around.

"Time it was and what a time it was,
 it was...a time of innocence,

a time of confidences.

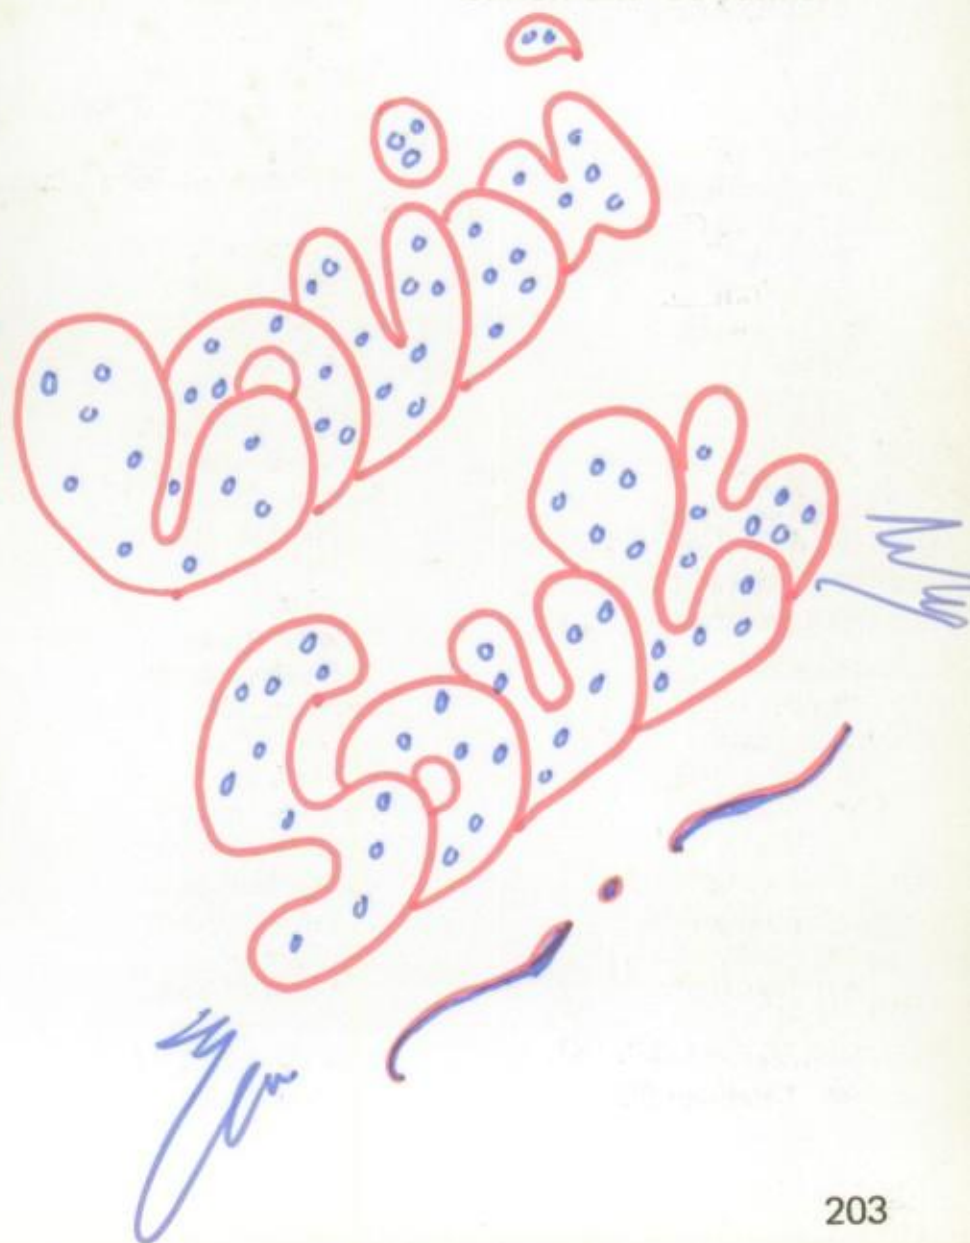

Long ago...

it must...

I have a photograph.

Preserve your memories,

Simon and Garfunkel

1969 Black And Gold

Dear Reader:

Faced with the enormous task of producing an annual for a school of 2,200 students, our staff began by working on the theme at the close of the '68 school year. Seeking to use new concepts of journalism and revised standards of the old meant that all of us needed to study and re-evaluate our past methods.

Papers torn in frustration, applied and re-applied pictures, trimming and trimming again, thumbing through dictionaries, were but part of the agonizing daily routine spent to put across ideas. But in carrying out these rituals, features that we are proud of became part of this book. Working especially on the appearance of our layouts and how the printed word affected its looks, we applied novel usages of margins and white space.

We learned that in putting out a yearbook it not only meant creating but co-operating. Without each member's willingness and help, the production would not have been possible. When problems were evident or crises arose, compromises and adaptations were made by our adviser, Mrs. May Lee Chung.

So, to you, we present our interpretation of the school year 1968-69 in the 1969 Black and Gold. We hope that in these pages you will find an individual concept of the year's events as you remembered them.
